JUST GOVERNANCE FOR HUMAN SECURITY

4 - 9 July 2017

Addressing extremes of all kinds

---

How do we achieve governance
that is accountable to all,
majorities and minorities alike?

I came to Caux without much understanding about what to expect. I was inspired, moved and energized. The topics were challenging, but the collection of the great minds and those eager to listen more than speak, created opportunities for insights and life-changing action.

- Susan Savage, Former Mayor of Tulsa, Oklahoma

Human Security has been described by former United Nations Secretary-General Kofi Annan as "Freedom from want, freedom from fear, and the freedom of future generations to inherit a healthy natural environment". It depends on decisions made by those in power, diplomats, the media, academics and educators, industrialists and civil and social actors, but it also depends on each and every one of us. The global rise of extremes of all kinds puts this human security at risk.

This event is for anyone seeking inspiration to make fresh steps towards hope. An opportunity to work together to advance human security, to connect, and to discuss the best ways to deal with conflict, division, counter-extremism, and other challenges.

So come and share your own experiences, learn from others, and tackle healing what we call 'wounded memories', so unresolved conflicts or perceived injustice don't undermine peace. You'll be inspired to take action, as we respond to the global human security challenges we face at every level of society.

THIS EVENT WILL OFFER:

- PLENARIES EXPLORING THE MAIN THEME AND THE SIX PILLARS ON HUMAN SECURITY

- INTERACTIVE WORKSHOPS TO ENHANCE NEGOTIATION, MEDIATION, CROSS-CULTURAL TEAMWORK AND PEACEMAKING SKILLS

- GROUP DISCUSSIONS BETWEEN PEOPLE OF WIDELY DIFFERENT BACKGROUNDS

- FOCUSED HIGH-LEVEL DIALOGUES

- HUMANSECURITYX: A TRAINING AND DEVELOPMENT OPPORTUNITY TO FACE TODAY'S GLOBAL CHALLENGES

I have attended many conferences in my career. Just Governance for Human Security was unique in its ability to bring together diversity or cultural and professional backgrounds to tackle contemporary challenges. The unparalleled sense of community at this conference, allows for unfiltered and respectful dialogue. The spirit of camaraderie among participants gives me hope that just governance is achievable within our lives.

- Dr Edward Mabaya, Assistant Director of the Cornell Institute for Food and Agricultural Development

Be more than just a participant!

Just Governance for Human Security will provide you with multiple opportunities to present and discuss the issues that matter to you and build relationships based on trust in a safe and interactive environment.
